LYNDON CENTER. Death of Mrs. Campbell.

Alberta Waldron Raymond, wife of Elwyn G. Campbell, died of Bright's discase at New Bedford, Mass., Tuesday, Mar. 31, after an illness of only three days. She left an infant daughter 17 hours old, who is named for her mother, Alberta Waldron. Mrs. Campbell would have been 24 years of age next June. She leaves three children-Donald, three years old, Malcolm, 14 months, and the mant daughter. Prayers were held at ber late home at New Bedford, Friday afternoon. The funeral was held at the home of her parents in East Weymouth, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The remains were placed in the tomb at East Weymouth. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers on the white casket, on walls were hung with beautiful designs and bouquets. From her parents and brothers and sisters, roses; from Mr. Campbell's family, 24 bride's roses tied with white satin ribbon; from her husband, a large wreath of English violets, her tavorite flowers, besides designs from Malden principals and teachers and New Bedford teachers. Her classmates at Weymouth High school gave a beautiful pillow. Her little three year-old son Donald selected by himself a bouquet of lilies of the valley which was placed in her hand. She was robed in her wedding clothes. She leaves beside her own tamily, parents, three brothers. Fred, a Congregational minister in Indiana; Robert, at work in a Boston bank, and Walter, who lives at home; also two sisters Emma, who is secretary for the superin tendent of city missionaries, and Marion, who is in school. A canvass of the maple sugar crop shows that up to date the yield has averaged about a pound and one-half to the tree and the season is not yet over. This is more than was secured in 1899 or 1901 and more than half as large as last year's crop. The quality is fair and the price will not be as high as some might expect as there is a good crop being se cared in Canada which will tend to keep the price down.

Rare Bird Caught.

Charles H. Horton secured vesterday a red necked grebe, which is believed to be the only specimen ever caught in St. Johnsbury. As two of the shopmen were returning from work a couple of grebes flew at them and one of the birds took one of the men's hats from his head and the birds and by throwing one of the stones at him stunned him and captured him alive, while the other bird escaped. | ton. The Late George H. Ide.

Editor of CALEDONIAN:

The recent very interesting account of the life and work of the late Rev. George H. Ide, which appeared in your paper, recalls a bit of family history which may be of interest to many of your readers.

John Ide, the great grandfather of the late George Ide, came from Rehoboth, Mass., in 1792, and settled in St. Johnsbury, where he tollowed the trade of wheelwright and carried on the farm which he bought in that year.

From one of his sons, Jacob Ide, came Joseph, the father of the late George H. Ide. Mrs. B. Ide Mason of Passumpsic is a sister of Joseph Ide, and mother of Rev. E. D. Mason of Boston and F. W. Mason of Passumpsic. Another aunt of Dr. George Ide was Mrs. Harriette Ide Eagar, who lived in the south and was the mother of Rev. John and Rev. George Eagar, also two daughters who married clergymen. And still another aunt, Mrs. Susan Ide Morse, had a son, who is also a minister in Williamsfield, Ohio.

Rev. John Ide, Jr., brother of Joseph, was a pioneer Baptist minister in northern Vermont and Canada, with his home in Coventry (adjoining my native town of Newport.) He was a strong and aggressive preacher, and had much to do with the founding of churches in the then new | stock a pond near that city. towns along the frontier.
